Hi, Neighbor

by Mae Rex Graham

Many riders with their beautiful horses are coming from quite some distance next Thursday afternoon to ride in the second annual Powow Parade.

There is scarcely a week that these riders do not appear in one parade and sometimes more during the week. The reception they get from the people along the parade route and the size of the crowd will help to form their opinion of Lemon Grove.

All of you good Neighbors are urged to invite your friends to be down town on Broadway when the parade passes Thursday evening at 6:30.

There are many riders in some of the Horse Clubs who rent their mounts transported to and from the parade. Make them feel that it is worth their while.

Good programs will be provided. Don't fail to see the comedy dance. "Put Your Shoes on, Lucy." Heard tell it is a scream.

The children's and pet parade Saturday morning at 10 o'clock should draw a large crowd.

There will be many and varied kinds of booths, proceeds from which will go into a trust fund for recreation facilities for Lemon Grove.

To Try Again for School Allocation

Supt. Byron K. Netzley will leave for Sacramento Monday to again try to get the allocation of money from the State for assistance in building local schools.

As the situation now stands there will be double sessions for all children through the sixth grade. Many children in Lemon Grove have never had the privilege of attending school a whole day.

The school board has purchased a site on San Miguel where a school will be built as soon as State aid is received.

Mr. Netzley stated that if the aid is not forthcoming soon there will be no relief for the crowded situation next year.

Popular Nurse in Auto Accident

Miss Roberta Bauer, office nurse for Dr. Peter Shea, local dentist, was injured in an automobile accident Monday evening in Los Angeles.

Miss Bauer had been on vacation and was returning home. Threee other young ladies were in the car which Roberta was driving.

Blinded by the sun, she went through a red signal and collided with another car.

Roberta was the only one severely injured. She has three broken ribs and a fractured pelvis and is bing cared for in St. Vincent's Hospital.

May we suggest that cards or letters from local friends would help cheer Roberta very much.

Mrs. Shea is helping her husband in the office until a temporary nurse can be secured.

Over 3,000 Acres Burned

A fire which started south of Highway 80 east of the city of El Cajon at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon burned over 3,000 acres before it was brought under control.

Five mammoth bulldozers, 18 fire trucks and 300 men battled the blaze for hours before it was finally stopped.

Flames and smoke roared into the air and was visible for 70 miles.

The jam created by motorists interfered with the movement of fire fighting equipment, and at one time cars were lined four abreast on El Cajon boulevard. Police were kept busy moving motor traffic out of the way of firemen and trucks.

The flames threatened many valuable homes in the area of Tunnel Hill, Ruiz Canyon and Oakridge. The volunteer fire department of Harbison Canyon was alerted to stand by in case the flames topped the ridge and entered the canyon.

Residents of the Monterey Heights area are being asked to donate articles suitable for the booth, and arrangements have been made to pick up all articles on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings preceding the Powow.

Suggested articles for donations are: homemade jellies and jams; home-canned fruit and pickles; pottery pieces and pictures; vases and figurines; victrola records; funny books; fancy work; tinned foods; potted plants; old novels; pocket editions; costume jewelry; fresh fruit; home-made candy; used games and cards (Canasta, Monopoly, etc.); discarded toys; electrical equipment, usable furniture and tools.

Please come to the park on Tuesday evening and help make the dream of a Recreation Center come true.

Local Folks Happy Over Bond Sale

The First National Trust and Savings Bank was the successful bidder on the $35,000 bond issue Lemon Grove Fire Protection District, it was announced today. The bid, which was accepted by the Board of Fire Commissioners, was for 2¼ percent interest.

The funds will be used for building a fire station, the purchase of a fire truck and equipment and to set up a fire department.

The bonds sold were voted at a special election on June 15 and are payable at the rate of $3000 a year, August 1, 1951 to 1955, and $4000 on August 1, 1956 to 1960.

The 2¼ percent bid of the First National Bank was less than one-half the maximum rate of 5 percent which had been approved in the special election.

Jack Koop, manager of the Lemon Grove Branch of the First National said the bank's bid on the Lemon Grove bonds was a part of a broad program to participate fully in the financial activities of this rapidly growing community.

Chairman J. Morris Mulkey of the Fire Commission said "We are happy that the local bank receives the bonds on their low bid of 2¼% as it shows a community spirit on the part of that great institution."

Work of organizing the fire department and securing a home for the equipment will move along fast once money is in the hands of the district, Mr. Mulkey said.

It will take several weeks for O'Melvany and Myers, Los Angeles bond attorneys, to complete their work and get the bonds and interest coupons printed, and as soon as that work is finished the money will be paid into the Fire Protection District treasury.

The commissioners submitted the district's budget to the San Diego County Board of Supervisors for their approval, and from this budget the tax levy will be set to raise the money to pay the operating expenses of the department.

The budget, approved by the Board of Supervisors, is as follows:

Wages and salaries	$7,500
Maintenance and Operations	$3,750
Unappropriated Reserve	500
Total	$11,500

McGuires Return from Long Trip

They also visited in Devay, Ind., toured Yellowstone and Glacier National Parks and other points of interest on the way.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who lived in Lemon Grove until three years ago, were amazed at the growth of the community.

Kiwanians Hear Talk on Brain

Dr. Paul Shea gave a talk on physial medicine at Kiwanis Club Monday noon.

His talk centered about the brain, and he showed the members an Electro-Encephelogram which is used to measure the impulses of the brain, similar to an electro-cardiograph.

Dr. Shea is a brother of Dr. Peter Shea, president of the club, and was presented by Pete, while Vice-President Harry Monell presided at the meeting.

The Queen contestants will be guests of the club at luncheon next Monday.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

Who are they? What do they do? How do they operate?

To many, possibly, there is no more mysterious a group than professional campaign managers.

Yet taken as a whole, campaign managers are just like lawyers, doctors, merchants and public officials. Some regard their profession as the most challenging of all—for the campaign manager can help provide sound, honest public officials; he can wage political war against scurrilous ballot measures; and he can work to acquaint the public with the facts on just and needed ballot legislation.

There are campaign managers, too, who regard politics as a lush proposition—a field to exploit regardless of right or wrong, so long as a fee is involved. In other words campaign managers are just like people, some good, some bad, and some mediocre.

One of the most fascinating stories ever to come to light concerning a campaign manager is about one who failed—not to elect his candidate, but to properly evaluate the campaign.

After 85 years, evidence has been discovered explaining why the immortal Abraham Lincoln was so depressed along about this time in the summer of 1864 that he was ready to concede the election to General George G. McClellan by withdrawing his bid for re-election.

President Lincoln's campaign manager, in a fit of defeatism, was ready to call it quits. Writing to the President, he said: "I am in active correspondence with your staunchest friends in every State and from them all I hear but one report. The tide is setting strongly against us. . . This State (New York) according to the best information I can get would go 50,000 (population roughly 1,400,000) against us tomorrow. And so of the rest. . . .

"Nothing but the most resolute and decided action on the part of the government and its friends can save the country from falling into hostile hands." He went on to urge President Lincoln to appoint a commission to make peace with the Confederacy.

President Lincoln, as every one knows today, won his race for re-election hands down—even though he was sarced to death before election. His popularity had never been greater.

What about the campaign manager?

History doesn't record his reaction to Lincoln's great victory. Perhaps like some others of not so ancient vintage, he silently folded his tent and stole away following his debacle. For one mistake no campaign manager can make—if he hopes to stay in business—is to lose faith, no matter how dark the picture.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT

JAMES DORAIS

For some reason, many housewives who are reconciled to the fact that the price of corned beef is five times what it was pre-war, or that milk and eggs and bread have advanced steadily in price over the years, can still work up a case of high blood pressure over the high price of coffee.

It is hard to say why coffee prices should contain such a high emotion-content, unless it's because the coffee bean itself is grown in a torrid clime, where emotions are naturally more violent. At any rate, South American coffee growers, who have been accused of manipulating prices, are reported to consider it very odd that Americans should resent such manipulation when the official policy of the United States is to hold up prices to consumers of foods grown here.

An announcement by a San Francisco coffee roasting firm explains coffee prices this way:

"A huge increase in coffee consumption in the United States during recent years and a gradual return of the European market (which was completely lost to the producing countries during the war influenced a decline in coffee growing) have brought about a situation where world consumption and world production of coffee have come into aprroximate balance."

In other words, it's just the law of supply and demand at work. However, a Congressional Committee headed by Senator Gillette of Iowa, which recently completed an investigation of coffee prices, came to the conclusion that the answer wasn't quite so simple.

The Gillettee committee recommended that the U. S. Justice Department sick an FBI man on the international coffee commission, which meets periodically ostensibly to gather coffee statistics. Apparently the committee felt that the commission indulges in price-rigging on the side.

The committee also urged that Brazil and Columbia be given U. S. aid in devaluating their currencies. And it recommended that the United States offer technical aid to Central and South American countries not now growing coffee to induce them to put in plantings.

The coffee growing countries, however, have received the Gillette Committee report with some disfavor. One Brazilian newspaper called it "intimidating, revolting, brutally imperialistic and offensive." The good neighbor policy seems to have got lost in the shuffle here some place.

Whatever the reason, it seems likely that the price of coffee is going to remain a good deal higher than it used to be. But if it is true, as coffee roasters point out, that even with retail prices of 80 cents a pound, a cup of coffee only costs 2 cents to make, perhaps all the furore has been a tempest in a coffee pot.

At any rate, it seems kind of silly to get excited about the cost of a commodity we don't raise and can't control, when we have all kinds of laws on the books, both State and Federal, to boost artificially the cost of the food we grow at home.

Does Lemon Grove need a recreation park?

FARM NEWS
AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

CAUTION WITH INSECTICIDES

Those labels and printed warnings on containers should be strictly followed, warns Dr. A. E. Michelbacher, assistant professor of entomology of the University of California at Berkeley. He urges California fruit and vegetable growers to practice extreme caution in handling insecticides.

Applications should be timely and made when precisely necessary. By all means indiscriminate use of poisonous materials should be avoided.

Growers should see to it that no poisonous residue remains on fruit or edible portions of vegetables. In addition, states Dr. Michelbacher, no dust or spray should enter adjacent fields to provide a danger for bees or livestock.

The proper equipment is also important. Appropriate gear for the operator assists in protecting him. Clothes should be removed immediately after contamination and the hands, exposed arms, and face thoroughly washed.

Insecticides themselves should be stored in dry, cool places, where there is no danger of contaminating livestock feeds or human foodstuffs. All stored insecticides should be plainly labeled.

o o

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL HEADQUARTERS TO MOVE

Headquarters of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California in San Diego is to be moved to Building No. One in the San Diego County Operations Center, 4005 Rosecrans street, at the intersection of Pacific Boulevard (U. S. Highway 101) with Rosecrans in Old Town.

Since 1940 this office has been located on the fourth floor of the U. S. Customs Building in downtown San Diego. E. C. Moore, farm advisor says that the new location should result in improved accessibility and greater convenience for farm people from all parts of the county.

The new headquarters facility has been provided by the County of San Diego, through action taken by the Board of Supervisors in 1949. Work on the conversion of the building is nearly completed, and probably the move will be made soon after mid-August.

SPECIAL ALFALFA FOR FARMERS

An alfalfa variety resistant to dwarf disease, California Common 49, has been developed by the University of California College of Agriculture.

A limited amount of seed will be available in the fall of 1950. Then it will be allocated only to those areas where dwarf disease is the primary cause of rapid loss of stands.

Dwarf disease of alfalfa is one of the primary factors responsible for the thinning of stands during the second and third seasons of growth. This disease affects about one third of the alfalfa producing areas of California. Dwarf disease is very active in the San Joaquin Valley and Riverside County.

Dwarf alfalfa can be recognized by the gradual loss of vigor and the production of an excessive number of small spindly stems with dark green leaves. The plants usually die six to eight months after infection.

DDT CAN KEEP OUT TERMITES

DDT mixed with oil and spread through the soil offers a means of controlling termites around wooden structures. So reports Farm Advisor E. C. Moore, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, on the basis of research carried on by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Experiments show that 5 percent DDT in No. 2 fuel oil serves well for control. Entomologists suggest digging a trench along the foundation about 30 inches deep and about the width of a spade. Saturate the earth at the bottom with the DDT preparation and also saturate layers of the soil as you fill up the trench. Apply the treatment at the rate of one quart per cubic foot of soil.

A single treatment of DDT will prevent termites from attacking woodwork for at least five years. The entomologists don't know yet how much longer than five years it may remain effective.

Wanda Taylor Is Sunday Bride

Culminating a romance of high school days was the wedding last Sunday afternoon of Miss Wanda Taylor and Walter C. Bouchey, who were both graduated from Grossmont High School in June.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. J. Morris Mulkey at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church.

The bride wore an aqua gabardine suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gladioli. She was attended by her sister, Miss Shirley Taylor, who wore a frock of pink divinity with white accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Robert Taylor, brother of the bride, was best man.

Immediately following, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, 7480 Central, were assisted by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Bouchey, of Glenview, in receiving at their home for 30 guests.

The happy couple then left for San Fernando where the bridegroom is employed and where they will be at home at 1775 Seventh street.

World Police Force Needed

By CONG. RICHARD NIXON

The Korean war and its implications of further communist aggressions elsewhere in the world clearly point up the necessity for establishment of a world police force by the United Nations to enforce its "paper" condemnations of unwarranted military action.

While it is perhaps too late to organize and train an international contingent for effective use in the Korean hostilities, at least in their current stage, the wheels should be set in motion to establish such a force to deal with similar outbreaks in the future. Certainly there is ample evidence of a Soviet Russian strategy to stimulate conflict involving her satellites and the United States wherever possible, sapping American armed strength but weakening Russia's not one whit

Blood and Flags

In and out of Congress, there is a growing feeling of resentment over the fact that America not only has been forced to bear virtually the entire economic burden in resisting the spread of Communism but now, in Korea, is carrying just about the whole military load too. As one Senator said, "We furnish the blood, and the United Nations the flags."

Two years ago, along with 13 other Congressmen, I sponsored a resolution in the House proposing to strengthen the United Nations through the estblishment of a UN International Contingent. Now, with the United States committing thousands of American lives on Communist battlefields, a number of us are again preparing a similar resolution, adapting it to the situation of today, which we will introduce in a few days.

Procedure Outlined

A United Nations police authority can be established within the framework of the present UN Charter, which would not require revision, in one of two ways: (a) if Soviet Russia walks out, a simple resolution of the Security Council could create a UN police authority, with powers to organize, train and supervise an international contingent; (b), if Russia stays in the Security Council and exercises the veto, the same police authority could be established under Article 51 of the UN Charter by the United States and other nations with or without Russia's approval. Endorsement of such a move by the General Assembly would not be absolutely necessary, although it undoubtedly would be forthcoming.

Apart from the assistance this plan would promise us in fighting Communist aggression, a strong argument for the establishment of a UN world police authority also can be made on the premise that the existence of a UN fighting force would serve as a powerful deterrent to such aggressions. In other words, in its broader aspects, this is a plan for enforced world peace.

When the time comes that Russia believes she is strong enough to win a war, she will start it, but not until. Faced not only with the power of the United States, Great Britain and France, but also that of a strong international contingent, backed by the prestige of a united non-Communists world, I am convinced that Russia will never see that day of assured victory arrive.

Big Diesel Engine Does the Work

(San Diego Tribune)

Don't get the idea that people are not much interested in railroads and those big locomotives that pull long freights and fast passenger trains at a rattlety-bang speed across the nation . . because they are.

Some evidence to this effect was given one day last week when the officials of the San Diego & Arizona Eastern decided to try out one of the big diesel electric locomotives in hauling freight trains between La Mesa, El Cajon and San Diego. They hitched one of those fine new Baldwin machines on the front end of 17 freight cars and whooped the train from San Diego up the grade to La Mesa, and then over to El Cajon. A bunch of railroad men went along, the party including Elmer Hall, engineer, who has been with the line 36 years, and Brakeman Tony Manez whose 42 years of service entitle him to some consideration as the oldest employee of the company. Folk along the line had got used to the old fashioned engines coughing uphill, dragging freight trains on the line three or four times a week, but when they heard that diesel roar out its warning at the crossings they really paid some attention.

Perhaps the diesel will be kept on the job, the railroad men say. If it stays, there won't be any need of putting on two of the old engines when a heavy load must be carried. Why, it will be almost like the old main line!

ROTATE TO GUARD AGAINST ROOT ROT

California cereal growers can guard against fungus root rot by crop rotation says Dr. J. W. Oswald, of the University of California College of Agriculture.

Oats which are tolerant to root rot can be used in rotation with wheat and barley.

Root rot has been recognized in California for the past 10 years as an important disease in wheat and barley. The disease appears to be on the increase especially in those areas continually cropped to grain.

Both seedlings and older plants are attacked. Diseased seedlings can be identified by a dark brown to black discoloration.

SODWORMS CAN BE CONTROLLED

Every year young lawns are badly damaged by sodworms. Sodworms attack the crown and growing points of the grass below mowing level.

Dr. R. M. Bohart, of the University of California College of Agriculture, advises the use of Chlordane or DDT against sodworms, and recommends one pound of insecticide be used for each thousand square feet of lawn.

SEQUOIAS MOVING EAST

The most northerly Sequoia gigantea tree east of the Mississippi River is believed to be in Marion, Ohio, according to Extension Forester Woodbridge Metcalf, of the University of California. Howard T. Mitchell, a California alumnus, of the class of 1933, writes of planting the tree as a family memorial.

Mitchell planted the Sequoia on March 31, 1939. Now, over 10 years later, it is eight feet tall and making slow, but satisfactory growth.

Another specimen of Sequoia growing east of the Mississippi is on the campus of the University of Idaho at Moscow, where it was planted in the arboretum in 1910.

SOIL MANAGEMENT IN ORCHARDS

Field meetings for the purpose of discussing several phases of soil management have been scheduled by Farm Advisor Joe Coony of the Agricultural Extension Service. According to Coony, "development in nutritional relations and water quality effects have made this series of discussion-type meetings desirable at this time. Also, in nearly every district, there are local problems or situations that need emphasis or explanation."

American school children are being pushed too fast in their studies, says Dr. E. T. McSwaine, dean of University College at Northwestern University. "We cannot speed up psychological and emotional development any more than we can speed up biological or physical development," Dean McSwaine declares.

Our political life is predicated on openness. We know that the only way to avoid error is to detect it; that the only way to detect it is to be free to inqire.—J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Fire losses in the United States last year amounted to $667,536,000, according to estimates of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the Wall Street Journal reported. The total was 6 percent below the record of $711,114,000 in 1948, and represented the first decline from a preceding year since 1942.

Happiness is the greatest paradox in nature. It can grow in any soil, live under any condition. It defies environment. The reason for this is because it does not come from without but from within. Whenever you see a person seeking happiness outside of himself you can be sure he has never found it.—F. Lincicome.

Fifteen major Protestant denominations have had an average membership gain of 36 percent in the last 25 years, it was announced by the United Stewardship Council, at Hillsdale, Michigan. During the same period these fifteen denominations also experienced an average increase of 80 percent in giving. The greatest percentage increase in membership in the 25 year span was reported by the Southern Baptist Convention. In 1925 the convention had 3,574,531 members. Last year it had 6,000,000—a gain of 67 percent. The United Lutheran Church reported 1,355,912 members, an increase of 58 percent since 1925.
